Writing 1

Claire posted a sign about “Camping Courtesies” at Bear Bottom Campground. Claire’s list included bullets. She also used CAPITAL letters or bold print to show the importance of some words. Claire chose a mix of imperatives and modal verbs to make strong and direct rules for campers.

Claire called the basic rules “The Bare Necessities.” She kept the list short. The campground rules cover only five topics. She thought her list included everything campers needed to do to prevent problems and enjoy camping safely. However, Claire noticed that she had missed at least one necessary topic—driving.

How should people drive in a campground?

Write a list of rules for drivers at Bear Bottom Campground.

- Make a title for your list.
  - A short title is best. Use only a few words.
  - A title should not be a sentence.
  - Capitalize the first letter of each content word in your title. Content words include meaningful nouns and adjectives. Do not capitalize prepositions such as “in” or “at”, or conjunctions such as “and” or “but”.
- Format your list with numbers, bullets, or letters.
- Include two or three obligations. Use imperatives.
- Include two or three prohibitions. Use negative modal verbs: must, should, or ought to.
